

AIA Dallas Associates Committee

Are you a high school student or parent looking for more information about architecture careers, summer programs, or universities with accredited architecture schools? This list of links is designed to help you find the information you need.

Found a great online resource that we don't have listed here? Please e-mail jlorenz@aiadallas.org with your suggested addition!

AIAS – The American Institute of Architecture Students – Since 1956, AIAS has been the official voice of architecture students. Membership is open to high school and college students, and the website offers many resources.

“Your Career in Architecture” – Our thanks to the Boston Society of Architects for letting us link to their information. This article is a great resource for those who want to know more about becoming an architect!

ASCA – Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture – The student section of this website offers the Guide to Architectural Schools for purchase, information about high school preparation for entering an architecture degree program, a list of the different types of architecture degrees, tips for selecting a school, and details about architectural practice.

Design Intelligence – Best Architecture and Design Schools – This annual publication is an all-in-one resource that ranks schools by region, type of program, feedback from architecture firms that hire recent graduates, and much more. Our copy was dog-eared from use!

ArchVoices – An independent, nonprofit organization, focused on architectural education, internship, and licensure.